

Unless you're the Postmaster General, this smart business moment applies to you.

- A Postal Service employee may not use her Postal Service position, title, or authority to endorse any product, service, or enterprise.
- For example, you cannot provide a testimonial to a vendor with your opinion about the quality of the vendor's products.
- Unauthorized endorsements violate the ethics regulations, and can damage our business relationships.

Obtaining the PMG's authorization for an endorsement keeps you on the right side of the law.

And that's always smart business.

Contact the Ethics Office (ethics.help@usps.gov) for more guidance.