

Sometimes it's not Good to Share

- Protect USPS intellectual property.
- Don't share plans, training material, or confidential material outside of the Postal Service without permission.
- IP costs money to develop and create. It's a valuable business asset.

Protecting the Postal Service's inventions, ideas and other intellectual property is critical to fostering innovation and making investments for the future.

And it's smart business.