

Special Treatment of Suppliers

It is always important to be professional and courteous with suppliers. Maintaining cordial relationships with our suppliers is good business.

But when a customer or supplier asks for favors, non-public information, or special access, BEWARE!

Even the appearance of giving special treatment to a supplier can lead to a host of problems.

Protecting the Postal Service's best interests is smart business.