

Privacy, Please

- Just because an employee tells you about a health issue doesn't mean the employee wants everyone to know about it – and we have an obligation to keep private health information private.
- Do not discuss employees' health issues with anyone who doesn't need to know.

Protecting the privacy of employees' health information is the law.

Respecting employees' privacy also contributes to a positive work environment.

And that's smart business.