

Protect Customer Information

- Keep customer information private, and use it only for postal purposes.
- Don't disclose customers' business operations or plans. It could result in legal action against the Postal Service.

The Postal Service wants to preserve customers' trust and avoid costly litigation.

And that's smart business.