

My Opinion Seems to Count

We hear you.

This element measures the sense of value that employees put on their work in the organization.

Employees want to feel valued. They want to know their input is important and they're making a significant contribution and difference to the environment in which they work. This feeling creates a greater sense of inclusion among workers and reinforces their sense of self-worth.

Hear me.

And that's smart business.