

Safety Talks

Talk the talk.

Safety talks are an effective way to instill the importance of safety. Prepare your talk carefully. Focus on one major subject or policy. Keep the talk targeted. For example, if you discuss housekeeping, highlight the danger of loose objects on the floor. Use visual aids or demonstrations to make your talk more interesting. Involve your employees when possible — this helps promote a safety culture.

And that's smart safety!

For additional information or guidance, contact your safety office.